COURSE DESCRIPTION

Why does international conflict occur? How can nations resolve it? From the Trojan and Peloponnesian Wars in ancient Greece through the wars among Native American tribes before European contact to recent conflicts in Sudan, Iraq, and Afghanistan, nations have gone to war. Historians record acts of war, describing in detail the who, what, when, where, and how of international conflict. As political scientists and public citizens, however, we want to understand why nations go to war and how to make it less likely. Does war arise because some people are evil? Is war inevitable because of the structure of nation-states and the international system? Even if conflict among states is inevitable, is war inevitable? What alternatives to resolving conflict by force? How effective are they?

If security concerns are central to contemporary international relations, so too are economic issues, human rights, and environmental protection. In an increasingly interconnected and interdependent world, we need to understand how states regulate—and why they often fail to successfully regulate—their citizens, and the multinational corporations that increasingly control the flows of goods, capital, information, and people around the world. The European Union, NAFTA, and other regional trade blocs are lowering their barriers to trade, influencing not only what we can buy but all aspects of people’s lives. The news media and the Internet make us increasingly aware of violations of human rights around the world, yet we know little about how to prevent these all-too-common atrocities. Scientists make us increasingly aware of how we degrade the natural environment. What obstacles does the international system pose to efforts to protect the globe from such problems as climate change and what strategies exist to overcome them?

This course introduces students to some of the answers to such questions—and more important, to ways to think about answering such questions—by reviewing theories of the factors that cause international conflict and that strategies that states can use to resolve them. We will examine themes of continuity and of change. We will examine whether lessons from the Peloponnesian War help us understand why countries develop nuclear weapons today. We will examine how increasing economic, informational, and ecological interdependence will change and reshape international relations in the future. The course will help you develop theoretical and empirical understandings of such questions and provide you with tools that foster a causal understanding of many social problems and their resolution.

REQUIRED TEXTS AND I-CLICKER

The course book is on sale at the UO Bookstore (to save money, you may buy an earlier edition, which should be adequate for the course). A few copies will be on reserve at Knight Library.

- Most required readings are available via the Course Canvas Site. Referred to as Online Reading.
- Daily reading of the New York Times is strongly recommended! Read online, in the library or check the UO Bookstore.
- For required quizzes, you will need to have an I-clicker. You can buy your own or borrow one from a friend. Make sure to register it on the Canvas site.
- The course Canvas site will help you succeed in the class. Check the website every 2 or 3 days for class news, lecture notes will usually be posted before class; links for relevant news articles, online surveys, etc.

EXPECTED LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Understand key theories used by scholars to explain why conflict is common among countries and how, despite the pressures for conflict, countries sometimes are able to cooperate.
- Recognize both similarities and differences in how states interact in the issue areas of national security, international trade, human rights, and environmental protection.
- Demonstrate critical thinking and communication skills, including the use of counterfactuals, by using insights from various theoretical perspectives to explain empirical variation across issue areas and across problems within issue areas.
Estimated Student Workload / How Grades Will Be Determined

Student workload involves 120 hours for this 4-credit course. Time and percent for components are detailed below.

Assignment of final grades

Students will receive grades based on the following criteria:

- A+: if given at all, given to those few students whose performance stood out as significantly stronger than all other students in the course
- A: all assignments completed in ways that demonstrate a particularly strong and nuanced understanding of almost all course concepts and the ability to clearly connect theories from the course to empirical evidence
- B: all assignments completed in ways that demonstrate solid understanding of most course concepts and the ability to adequately connect theories from the course to empirical evidence
- C: completed assignments demonstrate only a basic understanding of course concepts and/or one or more assignments missing
- D: many assignments are missing and completed assignments demonstrate little understanding of material
- F: assignments completed account for less than 80% of total grade.

Expected distribution of grades: ~20% As, ~35% Bs, ~35% Cs, ~7% Ds, ~3% Fs.
COURSE POLICIES

Late assignments
Help me help you pass the course by turning in all assignments on time. Late assignments lose 2 points/day: assignments received before midnight of the 1st day after being due lose 2 of 100 points, before midnight of the 2nd day 4 points, etc. Turn in all assignments, even if late. Missing ANY assignment makes passing this course difficult.

Grade complaints
Contested grades will first be read by a second GTF. If the second GTF assigns the same grade, no grade change will occur. If the second GTF assigns either a higher or lower grade, the professor will read the assignment and independently assign the final grade, which can be either higher or lower.

Academic Integrity, Plagiarism, Fabrication, Cheating, and Misconduct:
By enrolling in this course, you agree to abide by the University’s Student Conduct Code. You must read the three webpages linked on Canvas for Assignment #1. Understanding these documents is a course REQUIREMENT that you MUST complete by the end of week 1. Everything in your assignments must be your own work. Neither ignorance of these policies nor the lack of an intention to cheat or plagiarize will be considered a legitimate defense. Raise questions you have with the professor before problems arise. I will flunk all students who plagiarize and will report them to University authorities. Unfortunately, I have done so two or three times in the past few years.

Creating an environment conducive to learning
Civility and tolerance: My primary goal as a faculty member is to create an inclusive learning environment in which everyone feels safe to express their views, whatever they may be, so long as they do so in ways that are respectful of others. In light of the divisions that became visible in the 2016 election, I seek to create a learning environment in which those who voted for our current President and those who did not can BOTH feel free to express their political opinions. One cannot identify a person’s political views by race, religion, attire, gender, favorite music, or type of skateboard: in 2016, at least 1 in 10 (and often 3 in 10) of every demographic group voted differently than the rest of that group http://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2016/11/08/us/politics/election-exit-polls.html. Being the faculty member for a class gives one considerable power (directly over grades and in more subtle ways). Therefore, I will try to be cautious in how I express my views and in how I respond to students expressing theirs. I will try my best to keep my own political biases in check so as to help everyone in the class feel safe expressing their views, regardless of which side of the political aisle they stand on. My biases will come through at points – I apologize for that and encourage you to call me out (in a respectful way) when they do. I invite each of you to express your political views, whatever they may be, in a way that is respectful of all people, whether they are in our classroom or not. I encourage you to disagree with me and to challenge me to separate relatively-objective theories and facts from more-subjective values. In my view, democracy works when differences of opinion are expressed with enough clarity and respect that I change my mind and, perhaps, I also change the minds of others. I ask for your help in creating a learning environment in which mutual and inclusive respect extends to all people regardless of who they are or what their political views are, so long as those views are expressed respectfully.

Disabilities: Both I as a professor and the University of Oregon are committed to creating inclusive learning environments. Please notify me if any aspects of my instruction methods or course design result in barriers to your participation. If you have a preferred gender pronoun, please let me know what it is. If you have a disability, I encourage you to contact Accessible Education Center in 164 Oregon Hall at 346-1155 or uoaec@uoregon.edu. If you have already been in contact with Accessible Education Center and have a notification letter, please provide me with a statement from Accessible Education Center during the first week of class so that we can make appropriate arrangements. University policy requires that students present a notification letter from AEC to receive testing accommodations (see http://aec.uoregon.edu/students/current.html).

Prohibited Discrimination and Harassment Reporting
I personally strongly support the University’s policy on discrimination and harassment, as reflected in the following statement from the University of Oregon at https://titleix.uoregon.edu/syllabus. The instructor of this class, as a Student Directed Employee, will direct students who disclose sexual harassment or sexual violence to resources that can help and will only report the information shared to the university administration when the student requests that the information be reported (unless someone is in imminent risk of serious harm or a minor). The instructor of this class is required to report all other forms of prohibited discrimination or harassment to the university administration.

Any student who has experienced sexual assault, relationship violence, sex or gender-based bullying, stalking, and/or sexual harassment may seek resources and help at safe.uoregon.edu. To get help by phone, a student can also call either the UO’s 24-hour hotline at 541-346-7244 [SAFE], or the non-confidential Title IX Coordinator at 541-
346-8136. From the SAFE website, students may also connect to Callisto, a confidential, third-party reporting site that is not a part of the university.

Students experiencing any other form of prohibited discrimination or harassment can find information at respect.uoregon.edu or aaeo.uoregon.edu or contact the non-confidential AAEO office at 541-346-3123 or the Dean of Students Office at 541-346-3216 for help. As UO policy has different reporting requirements based on the nature of the reported harassment or discrimination, additional information about reporting requirements for discrimination or harassment unrelated to sexual assault, relationship violence, sex or gender based bullying, stalking, and/or sexual harassment is available at http://aaeo.uoregon.edu/content/discrimination-harassment. Specific details about confidentiality of information and reporting obligations of employees can be found at titleix.uoregon.edu.

Mandatory Reporting of Child Abuse: UO employees, including faculty, staff, and GEs, are mandatory reporters of child abuse. This statement is to advise you that your disclosure of information about child abuse to a UO employee may trigger the UO employee’s duty to report that information to the designated authorities. Please refer to the following links for detailed information about mandatory reporting: https://hr.uoregon.edu/policies-leaves/general-information/mandatory-reporting-child-abuse-and-neglect.
The Syllabus designates readings that you should have read before coming to class that day. For example, you should have read Nye (ch.1), Thucydides, Crawford, and Aristophanes BEFORE the Week 1-Thursday class.

Tuesday, Week 1: Introduction
- Introduction to class. No readings assigned.

Thursday, Week 1: The history of international relations

Assignment #0: Absolutely required plagiarism/cheating readings. By enrolling in this course, you agree to abide by the University’s Student Conduct Code. You must read the websites linked via the course Canvas site by this day and understand what they imply about your conduct in this class. Raise any questions you have with the professor. You will be assumed to have read and fully understood what plagiarism is and how to avoid it.

- Nye, Ch. 1.

Major Theories of International Relations

Prisoners’ Dilemma Game will be conducted in section – see web page for instructions and come prepared.

- Nye, Ch. 2.
- Both these articles reflect the realist view that politics matter less in foreign policy than national interests.
